To Our Valued Customers and Distribution Partners,

In these unprecedented times, Sto Corp. is carefully monitoring ongoing developments with the coronavirus (COVID-19) and focusing on our number one priority: the well-being of our employees and customers. We are keeping a close watch on how this virus may affect all aspects of our business -- from our employees to our operations and supply chain.

Sto Corp. will continue to be open for business, but we are proactively taking measures to protect our employees and help limit the spread of the virus through our communities. We have cancelled employee participation in events and have postponed all business-related travel. In addition, we have advised all employees that are able to work remotely do so. By limiting the number of employees in our facilities, we help protect those who need to be in the office, and those who are working remotely.

We have communicated to our employees regarding the importance of their safety and health. We're recommending they follow Center for Disease Control protocols such as washing hands often and staying home if sick. In addition, we've asked all employees to be mindful and limit their travel. With technology advancements we are able to stay connected and responsive to your needs while also respecting the social distancing being recommended. We will update our position on travel as needed.

At this time, we do not see any disruption to our manufacturing operations or our ability to deliver product. We are working closely with our raw material suppliers and freight partners to ensure that we are able to continue running our operations to meet lead times, and we do not foresee this changing in the near future. In the limited circumstances where our product is imported, we are in close communication with customers and suppliers regarding any timeline changes.

Because the coronavirus situation is rapidly evolving, we will continue to closely monitor all developments and provide updates should the conditions change. Meanwhile, we will focus on our top three priorities in this crisis, namely to:

1. Protect the health of our employees and their families
2. Take steps that will benefit the overall wellbeing of our communities
3. Deliver for our customers

Together, we will get through this situation. Please do not hesitate to contact your Sto Sales Representative with any questions or concerns you have.

Sincerely,

Jose Berlingeri
President and CEO
